GRANT'S TESTIMONY.

THE OLD WARRIOR TELLS HIS STORY WITHOUT BEING SWORN.

"Well, gentlemen, I am ready for you. I am conscious of the fact that I am a very sick man."

New York, March 28.—Gen Grant is to have read patiently the reports of the trial of James D. Fish, of the Marine band, a partner in that unlovely firm of Grant & Ward, whose failure left the general responsible for millions of debt.

When Gen. Grant returned from his drive he found quite a company awaiting him in his pleasant front room on the second floor at 3 East Sixty-sixth street.

The general was anxious to testify, and although his memory failed him regarding the details of the case, he was able to state facts which when they had been impressed upon him by his own unusual occurrence.

"During the past week Gen. Grant has been in a comparatively comfortable condition. He is able to walk and to take his meals, and he is able to do his usual work."

The general is now in a comparatively comfortable condition. He is able to walk and to take his meals, and he is able to do his usual work.

THE RANCHERS ROUTED

CATTLEMAN CROSS CIMARON CREEK
CROWDED BY CAVALRY.

Reconnoitering in the border of the Kiowa Reservation—Lying Low Across the Border—Hunting the Herders With Their Herds.

ARKANSAS CITY, Kas., March 28.—Gen. Hatch, who has been absent from the seat of the Oklahoma war for three days, has returned and at once called a consultation with Maj. Benteen, who had come up from the main camp on Chilleen creek. A courier came in later with the information that when the company of cavalry which was sent from Camp Russell to destroy the ranch of Burke and Martin reached the Cimaron river it was found that the stockmen had been forewarned of what was coming and had taken down both their houses and carried them to the south side of the river, and had also driven their stock across the reservation. This reservation has been leased by the Kiowa Indians to some cattle men with whom Burke and Martin had made arrangements permitting them to hold their cattle thereon for a few days at least. This reservation is outside of the Kiowa lands, but is so close to it, with only a small stream of water intervening, that the move of the Burke and Martin people, while it puts them outside of military interference, allows them to use the Oklahoma lands for grazing purposes.

The loonies say Gen. Hatch and the engineers of the Oklahoma movement have claimed all along that there were no cattle in Oklahoma, and yet in the face of the fact, Hatch now sends troops into Oklahoma with orders to drive out certain men who have been holding ranches there for years and of whose presence Gen. Hatch should have known, but he only half does it, as there are at least a dozen more cattle firms still there, among them the Wreth cattle company, the McClellan cattle company, Howard & Titus, H. R. Campbell, Ben. Keith and others.

These men claim to hold their cattle on the Cherokee strip, where they have large leases, but there are no fences between this strip and Oklahoma, and the cattle roam at will. The owners claim that their stock may have drifted into Oklahoma during the winter, but this they could not prevent. One large owner says some of his cattle have drifted as far south as the Red river.

Gen. Weaver, of Iowa, who is in Washington, telegraphed Capt. Couch, in command of the loonies, now here, that he had called upon Secretary Lamar and President Cleveland, and that it was believed he would shortly appoint the Oklahoma commission, in pursuance to the recent act of congress. It is thought here that this commission has already been decided upon in the interest of the stockmen, and that it will consist of Senators Dawes, of Massachusetts; Morgan, of Alabama, and Ingalls, of Kansas.

At the meeting of the Cherokee strip cattle association at Caldwell it was privately circulated about that these men would comprise the commission, and the information is said to have come to the stockmen direct from an intimate friend of Senator Plumb, and a man who has just come back from Washington. If this proves true it will raise a bigger row than ever, and will show that the stockmen are masters of the situation. Capt. Couch and his men say that were it not for the men holding cattle in the Cherokee strip, there would be no opposition to their going into Oklahoma.

THE BRAIN EXPOSED.

Remarkable Case of Recovery from a Cannon-Ball Wound.

RICHMOND, Ind., March 28.—For several days there has been in this city a gentleman who is as great a living curiosity as was ever exhibited in a museum, an example of how a man may be injured and still live. The gentleman's name is W. B. Metcalf, and he is a drummer for a Kentucky tobacco house. He was noticed first from the fact that he at ways kept his hat on, save when sleeping and eating his meals.

A reporter, who sat near him at dinner at the Huntington house, noticed the peculiar shape of his head. From his eyebrows back his forehead was a sort of an in-lined plane. If such an expression is applicable. He wore a wig, and the front part of this was "dressed." Attracted by the curious hair covering, the reporter asked for an explanation, and Dr. Metcalf, exhibited some specimens, unusual in surgical history.

He was a soldier in the Union army, and in battle had been hit by a cannon ball, in the middle of the forehead, and fracturing his skull. Dr. Agnew, of Philadelphia, afterward attended him and removed the largest piece of skull, and was so removed from a patient who recovered. The skull is broken away, leaving a place as big as a man's hand, with no bone from over the right eyebrow back to the top of the skull. He wears a pad over the place, and a wig over all, so that the injury is not noticeable other than a resemblance to the head of a Flathead Indian.

In the presence of a number of old soldiers who had called to see him, Dr. Metcalf lifted the pad and wig, and the entire brain was exposed, its pulsations and beats being plainly perceptible. He suffers no inconvenience from the ghastly injury; transacts business as well as anyone, and does not seem to mind his condition other than a dislike for the notoriety it forces on him, the people who are aware of his affliction looking upon him as a great curiosity.

A Madman's Fatal Leap.

CHICAGO, March 28.—A well dressed stranger, evidently suffering from the effects of a prolonged debauch, registered at the Davis house on Clark street. He had no money, saying he had been robbed of over $50 during the day, and left his overcoat in the office as security. He was shown to his room and while suffering, it is supposed, from delirium tremens he leaped from a window of the third floor to the street below and was killed. Letters found on the body are addressed to a friend, Reddy, Quincy, Mich.

Frozen to the Bottom.

PONDA, N. Y., March 28.—Dr. W. D. Schoolcraft, who is one of a meteorologist, says there have been fifty-nine days of the past winter wherein the thermometer registered below zero. There were only twenty-three days of such cold weather in the winters of 1823 and 1824. Usually at the season of the year the ice has passed out of the Mohawk river, but there is no sign of a break-up as yet. The ice in some places cleaves to the bottom of the river.
